W. I. Hicks Died Early Thursday

W. I. Hicks died at 1:40 o'clock this morning following a paralytic stroke suffered Sunday. Mr. Hicks was born January 30, 1844, near Brooks Station, Ga., and served in the civil war under Stonewall Jackson, being wounded during the second battle of Winchester, Va.

Mr. Hicks came here from Atlanta during the boom of 1888 and later moved his family to his farm near Somerville. In 1908 he moved back to town to give his children the advantage of larger school facilities. He had a host of friends in many sections of the county.

The deceased has been a devout Christian since early manhood and at his death was an active member of the Central Baptist church. He is survived by his wife, three sons, W. F. Hicks, of Denver, Colo.; John Hicks of Kansas City; H. E. Hicks, of Albany; two daughters, Mrs. H. W. Wade, of Birmingham, and Miss Sude Hicks, of Albany; and a brother, H. L. Hicks, of Brooks Station.

Morgan County Now Tick Free

Morgan county now is free of ticks, according to a report received here from C. J. Becker, inspector of the bureau of animal industry with headquarters in Birmingham. Sometime ago inspectors found only a small showing of tick infected cattle in Morgan county and Inspector Cameron stated at the time that it would not be long before the county would be entirely free. The report of Inspector Becker releases the county from quarantine.

Morgan Records 250 Leases Here

As an index to the oil and asphalt activity in this district is revealed in the fact that there has been recorded at the office of the probate judge over 250 leases to date, and it is understood that there is now at least this many more. These leases all cover lands in the Tennessee Valley at points where asphalt is known to exist and the strong probability of oil also.

Geologists Will Aid The Exhibits

The State of Alabama Geological Department has made arrangements to assist the exposition management in securing minerals and crude materials for exhibiting at the coming exposition.

George Huntington Clark, Assistant State Geologist, will be here the last part of the week and will take up active work in gathering representative minerals.

Mr. Clark writes, "The mineral resources of the Muscle Shoals and North Alabama District in general are extensive, valuable, and cover a very wide range of utility. Also they are to some extent wholly undeveloped or proven in any commercial way. In the light of what may be reasonably expected, however, to occur at Muscle Shoals, rapid development of these resources will immediately follow as a natural sequence of that great enterprise."

Mr. Clark will be invited to make an address on the mineral resources of this section some evening during the exposition.

Many Are Ill With Influenza

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 9.—Ten thousand persons, about one half the population of this city, are ill with influenza, according to a statement issued today by health authorities. The situation is alarming and unless exceptionally drastic measures are taken to combat the spread of the disease the entire city will be stricken with the malady, officers said.

Geologist Gets Exhibits Ready

George Huntington Clark, of the Alabama Geological department, is in the Twin Cities today. Mr. Clark has been designated by the state geologist to assist in preparing a mineral exhibit for the coming exposition.

Mr. Clark is a writer on industrial subjects and in last week's issue of the Manufacturers Record had a most interesting article about Muscle Shoals.

TRACE OF REVOLVER OWNED BY SLAYER OF MOVIE DIRECTOR IS BELIEVED FOUND

Weapon Said to Have Been Found in Alley Near Home

NEW DEVELOPMENTS ARE SENSATIONAL

Investigation of Murder Centralized in Office of District Attorney

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—Trace of a revolver which may have been used by the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, film director, has been found and the weapon probably will be turned over to the district attorney's office today.

The weapon was said to have been found by a man whose name is known to investigators in an alley near the Taylor home, the day after the murder. With a revolver which may have been used by the murderers in their possession, investigators will have the most important clue discovered since Taylor was killed, it was declared.

Henry Peavey, negro valet of the slain director, was taken to police headquarters today and subjected to a severe questioning. Later he was taken to the district attorney's office where it was understood he would be subjected to a further rigid examination.

Friends of Mabel Normand asserted today that attacks of the district attorney's home, her condition is not considered serious in any way. Miss Normand collapsed at Taylor's funeral Tuesday afternoon and is understood to have been in a highly nervous condition that night and early yesterday, but recovered her composure last night.

New sensational developments are expected today as a result of centralizing the investigation of the mystery in the office of District Attorney Thos. L. Woolwine. Every person known to be in possession of the slightest knowledge of the murdered film director, his life, association or facts leading up to the slaying, will be called before the district attorney's staff of deputies for questioning that officers have characterized as "one of the most grueling sort."

Film stars, whose faces are familiar to millions of movie fans all over the civilized globe will be taken to the district attorney's office for questioning during the day or tomorrow.

Persons prominent in other phases of motion picture work also will be seen by investigators. Among those to be questioned are: Mabel Normand, Mary Miles Minter, Mrs. Douglas McLean, Neva Guber, and a number of others whose names have not yet been linked with any phase of the case.

The "blessed baby" letters, written by Mabel Normand to the slain director and missing since his death were said today to be in possession of the district attorney. Likewise a dainty lace handkerchief, bearing the initials "M M M."

The letters were said to have been found tucked away in an old shoe in a closet of the bungalow at which Taylor was slain. It was understood today that attaches of the district attorney's office were busy engaged in going through scores of letters and telegrams found in addition to the Normand letters.

The latter, it was said, were only a minor portion of those found and it was possible that valuable clues would be developed through close scrutiny of these documents. Searchers had about concluded their investigations of the murder bungalow when the bundle of letters and telegrams were found in the toe of an old high top shoe worn by Taylor.

There was great conjecture as to how these letters reached their hiding place. It was suggested that Taylor feared their theft and had hidden them. Another theory was that they were hastily placed there by someone interrupted in their examination after Taylor's death, while still another theory was that they were placed there by someone who had been in the house at the time of the murder.

RAIDERS FIGHT WITH 'SHINERS

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Feb. 9.—Joe E. Powers, wanted here for murder, is believed to have been killed in a moonshine raid near New Market late yesterday when revenue men raided a wild cat still in King's Cove, near the Jackson County and Tennessee state line.

The moonshiners, numbering eight, were barricaded and resisted the attacking raiders, four in number.

A desperate battle at close range resulted. One other moonshiner was shot and Deputy Collector D. S. Root, who led the party, was shot in the foot.

More Candidates Are Asking Office

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 9.—Judge Sam F. Hobbs, of Selma, who was appointed judge of the fourth judicial circuit on the resignation of Judge B. M. Miller to become a member of the supreme court, notified the secretary of state today that he had become a candidate for re-election.

C. W. Ashcraft qualified as a candidate for representative from Laderdale county. J. J. Russell, incumbent, filed his certificate as a candidate for representative from Mobile county. C. R. Horton became a candidate for state senator from the fourteenth senatorial district.

Tabulate Returns Monday Morning

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 9.—It is probable Alabama will know what majorities were given for the highway bond issue and ex-service men's poll tax amendment Monday, William P. Cobb, secretary of state, today said official returns had been received from all counties except Lee, Dale and Shelby and they were expected by the next mails.

As soon as the returns are canvassed by the election commission, Governor Kilby will issue proclamations declaring the amendments to be a part of the constitution. Returns already received showed such great majorities for both amendments no effort was made to obtain the official figures.

Glass Plant May Locate In Morgan

An eastern capitalist, whose name was not divulged, was in the Twin Cities Wednesday looking into the advantages offered at this point for a glass factory. The chamber of commerce secured samples of silica for making glass from J. D. Wyker, and a sample was sent to the headquarters of the glass company in the east. The party was very much pleased with the opportunities offered, it is said.

G. Henry Watson Is Visitor Here

G. Henry Watson, of Moulton, and well known Alabama newspaper man, was a visitor to the Twin Cities today, enroute from Birmingham to his home. He was called back by the illness of a brother.

Mr. Watson recently completed a journalistic course at Columbia University and was engaged for a time on The New York Herald and other publications. He will probably accept a position in Birmingham.

BRIDGE LOCATED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 9.—(Special)—Advocates of the location of the Birmingham-Montgomery highway by way of a bridge at Reese's Ferry won a partial victory before the state highway commission Wednesday when it voted six to six on the proposal to purchase the railroad bridge of the Louisville and Nashville railroad for use as a highway bridge. The tie vote defeated the proposal to purchase the railroad bridge because the motion was in the affirmative.

2958 Persons Pay Poll Taxes Here

Tax Collector J. H. Hill today made a check of the poll list of the county, revealing that 2,958 have paid their poll taxes before the books were closed for the year. Of this number, 281 are back polls running all the way from two years to 20 years.

This is quite a falling off as compared with other years, and is indeed quite a surprise when it is considered that many women of the county availed themselves of the opportunity to register and pay a poll the present year. It brings forth the conclusion that the men of the county have been very backward in paying their poll taxes.

On His Death Bed, Negro Confesses

(International News Service)
ANNISTON, Ala., Feb. 9.—A death bed statement said to have been made by Arthur Wilson, negro, who was shot by Frank Moore, manager of the E. S. Copeland Mercantile Co., after the negro and three companions are said to have been caught in the act of robbing the store, resulted in detectives unearthing evidence which they declare will result in the arrest of another negro today.

Wilson, before his death, gave the police the names of the other negroes who he said aided in the robbery. Acting on this theory they went to a house today and found a bundle of blood stained clothing.

22 of Crew Reach Port Thursday

(International News Service)
NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 9.—With 22 of the crew of the fireboat transport Northern Pacific, which was enroute from New York to Chester, Pa., for repairs, the steamer Transportation of the North American line, put into Newport News early today. Among the men picked up last night was the captain of the destroyed ship, the first officer, the chief engineer and the first assistant engineer. The captain was unable to account for the four engineers of the Sun Shipbuilding company, of Chester, Pa., who were reported missing following the sinking of the ship.

Port Amendment Campaign Planned

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 9.—(Special)—Preliminary plans for the state-wide campaign of education regarding the importance of the state's seaport at Mobile which will be made prior to the general election in November were made at a conference of prominent citizens of Alabama with the state harbor commission at the Exchange hotel Wednesday afternoon. This campaign will be carried into every section of the state, according to the announcement, in order that every voter may have personal knowledge of the importance of the constitutional amendment to be voted on at the general election which will permit the state to construct a modern port and finance the construction work with port charges.

MAYO REPRESENTS MANUFACTURER IN COMMITTEE PROBE OF SHOALS OFFER

Chief Engineer Scheduled To Give His Testimony On Monday Morning

MORAL OBLIGATION TO POWER COMPANY

Major General Williams Takes The Part of Alabama Power Unit

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Henry Ford will not appear before the house military affairs committee in support of his offer to lease the nitrate plant and waterpower project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., Representative Julius Kahn, the committee chairman, announced today.

Ford will be represented before the committee by W. B. Mayo, his chief engineer. Mayo is scheduled to appear on Monday.

Major General Williams, chief of ordnance, was the first witness before the committee today. He testified that the government initiated the Muscle Shoals project as a wartime necessity, primarily for the production of nitrate for explosives.

He recited in detail the development and outlined the contractual obligations now existing between the government and the Alabama Power company, the Air and Nitrate Productions company, and the American Cyanamid company.

He expressed doubt that there is sufficient legal obligation existing between the government and the companies which might interfere with possible leasing of the project to Ford, but he declared there is a moral obligation that the government must meet.

General Williams referred specifically to the Warrior plant, now being operated by the Alabama Power company.

"There is certainly a moral obligation on the part of the government to permit the Alabama Power company to purchase that plant if it desires. That company came to the aid of the government at a critical time," declared General Williams.

The two other offers for Muscle Shoals, one from C. C. Tinkler, of San Francisco, and the other from Frederick E. Engstrum, of Wilmington, N. C., will be sent to congress in a few days, Secretary Weeks said today, and then congress could take its pick of the offers.

Tinkler's offer relates solely to the construction aspect of the proposition. Engstrum's bid is based on completion of the project with permission to sell power at a sufficiently high rate to allow him to manufacture fertilizer at a loss, establishing, in effect, a subsidiary for fertilizer.

In some respects, Weeks said, the offers of Tinkler and Engstrum are more advantageous to the government than that of Ford.

Chairman Kahn was ready today to combat attempts of the agriculture committee to get control of Ford's proposal. Backed by a declaration from Secretary of War Weeks that the Alabama project was started as a military necessity and was financed from military funds, Kahn predicted that consideration of the Ford offer or any other offer for developing Muscle Shoals will not be taken away from the military affairs committee.

Several members of the committee agree with Secretary Weeks that Ford has not offered sufficient guarantees to the government that he would carry out his contract by completing the project and continuing the manufacture of fertilizer.

Approval of the house committee to the Ford offer, it was declared by some members, depends on whether Ford will strengthen his guarantee that he will manufacture fertilizer to capacity production of the plant and at a materially reduced cost to the farmer. The committee also prepared to receive the two other offers, to

MR. BRYAN ON THE DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE.

W. J. Bryan has filled nearly a column in a number of daily papers, setting forth his views on the disarmament conference. One would think that the former Secretary of State were thinking of decamping to the Republican party judging from the complimentary manner in which he speaks of the results of the international meeting.

He declares that it was such a success that another one is sure to be held in a few years, and declares in closing his article that the song of the angels—"peace on earth and good will to men," is about to become the international anthem.

He says, "Japan has gained much—she has gained the confidence of the world." The great Commoner then goes on to explain that the Japs, by their consideration of China, especially in agreeing to the return of Shantung, have proven themselves worthy of trust. He says that now the danger of war in the Far East, is definitely removed, and adds that he was not one of those who ever believed in imminent danger from the Yellow men. He declared that China has "had a new birth," and that she is reaping the full fruits of the doctrine of "self determination," as a result of the provisions of the power treaty. Mr. Bryan thinks that the accomplishments of the conference regarding the Pacific, and the Far East, are about equal in magnitude to the 15 year naval holiday.

The outlawing of submarines in so far as they may not attack merchant vessels, and the negotiations against the use of poison gas, are commended. Mr. Bryan says that failure to cut down on land armaments was disappointing, but that such reduction is sure to follow in a few years. Assuming to gauge world sentiment—in that confident manner peculiar to the Commoner, he goes on to say that the temper of the people, just following the war, was such as to preclude the possibility of success for the Versailles treaty, and that prior to the war, nations were too bent on preparedness, to listen to reason, but that the memory of the horrors of the World War, and the fact that nearly all the governments are facing bankruptcy, made the times auspicious for the success of the Harding conference.

Doubtless due to his own many disappointments at the hands of public sentiment, Mr. Bryan fills a good deal of space in saying that the public opinion of the world moves too slowly to satisfy the idealists, and those who would bring about the reign of peace in a short time. A notable distinction of the Bryan summary, of the disarmament conference, is the large number of interesting questions and problems he makes no reference to. He does not speak of the 4-Power Treaty, nor of the Associations nor the League of Nations a political issue in the future.

BUSINESS TRUTHS.

"Business is not what it was during the war period. We have no right to expect it." These words were coined by a large business concern and carry with them a certain amount of truth. It is too much to expect business to be what it was during the progress of the war when every nerve was drawn taut to meet the demands that was being made, and when those in authority were calling on all lines of production to speed up that there might be plenty. The government purchased also with a lavish hand heeding not the price paid, so the article was forthcoming.

All these things went with war and the preparations to be prepared, but that period is over, and it is not right now to expect a return to those conditions. There is no need for it. We are at peace, and the sooner we can get accustomed to a steady business with no thought of the times when there was a scramble to buy all that was produced the better off we will be.

We might as well get ready for the inevitable; there will never be any more times that were experienced like the world war times, and it is very unfortunate for a people that we had the experiences of that period.

There was a Governor who said once and the people applauded that if he were a Czar instead of just a Governor, that he would issue an unkind provision for the hanging of any man who shipped food stuffs into his state—after the people of the state had had a few years of grace in which to raise their own food, and that he would further require said hanging to "be without benefit of the clergy" to those hanged. And the Governor added: "Of course, in the beginning I should be denounced as an infamous tyrant, but after the law had been in effect for ten years the richest state in the union would build a monument to me as the financial redeemer of my people."

That is good reading matter for the encouragement of those in the state and county who believe in all food stuffs for home consumption being raised at home.

When attempting to move a heavy object the greatest effort is expended just before it begins to move. May it not be the case in regard to Muscle Shoals just at this time? Let us hope so any way. Much has been said and done anent the great things that we have all been expecting to materialize soon, and everything augurs that now we are on the eve of the fulfillment of some of these expectations.

The matter has at last succeeded in getting in the hands of those in a legislative way who are friendly to the end sought, and those who have been silent up to this time are taking a lively interest in putting the matter over.

All these things that are now transpiring tend to strengthen the belief that better things are just out yonder. The friends of the proposition in the meantime want to keep extremely busy and push the matter with all the energy they can possibly muster.

With the coming to a close the armament conference at Washington a most important epoch has been reached. From the deliberations held, there was evolved three most important things. The limiting of armaments, the elimination of the submarine as a weapon of war and the agreement not to use poisonous gas in warfare.

Let us hope that this marks the beginning when the world may live in peace and pursue peaceful pursuits. For centuries it has been the dominant idea to excel in all kinds of war craft and devilish devices with which to destroy human life.

When we consider that 93 per cent of the taxes paid by the people of this government went for war and preparation for war, we can at once see what a great burden it had become.

Now with these things removed there ought to be some easing off burden it had become.

Now with these things removed there ought to be some easing off of the tax burden.

When every thing begins to hum at Muscle Shoals we will wonder and forget that there has ever been any hard times. There is no mistaking this fact; this development will start more wheels of progress to revolving than any one other thing that can be conceived of.

The moment the announcement is flashed over the world that Henry Ford has been awarded this plant, confidence will at once be restored, and the whole country will become electrified. The big things which we hope will develop may not reach our expectation in its entirety, but it will produce a spirit of optimism and confidence that will pull back the dark curtain of despair that has enveloped us for so long and place the star of hope in the foreground for many who have well nigh given up. Push the matter Oscar, we pushed for you when concerted effort of pushing was necessary.

Much of the instruction to the youth of the land bearing on a successful life is measured by the standard of money. The dollar mark is held up as the mark of success. They who are willing to serve most are the successful ones. They may have failed utterly from a money standpoint, but if they have served to the best of their ability, along the lines as laid down by the most successful one that ever trod the earth, they are successful. Entirely too much is the matter of securing mere money held up to the youth of the country as the great incentive to a business career. Money is all right, to be sure, but money without those other attributes that go with a well rounded life is sorry indeed, and in the end its owner has gathered nothing but a handful of leaves.

With the sunshine early this week the farmer turns his thoughts to the soil and the products that he is to bring therefrom. Conditions never get so bad that the farmer turns away from the cultivation of the land. With each recurring season the farmer takes up his position as the one that provides the means that all might live. He may have fared badly the year past but undaunted he makes the best provision he can for the successful cultivation of the crop in hand, and looks forward to the harvest with the same anticipations of harvest.

Charged with smoking on a street corner of a city of the United States a man was arrested. This is the first instance perhaps on record where this act was an arrestable one, and shows to what extent puritanical ideas can be carried. If matters of this kind are allowed to go on gathering in their wake certain indorsements it will some day be an offense for a parent to caress his child except in private and under certain prescribed conditions.

It is understood that the Alabama highway commission is actively engaged in mapping out the work that is to be done under the provisions of the recent bond amendment act, and that work will begin as soon as conditions will warrant. This will be indeed good news for many of the unemployed of the state as it will furnish an avenue for many to go to work at living wages.

Prosperity to most men is measured by the amount of dollars they are able to accumulate. Prosperity to others is the wealth that they recognize they possess in the good health they enjoy, and the air and sunshine and the ability to labor.

Many a young man ruins his chance for future great usefulness by essaying to get into life's business before he is capable of attending to it. So many are not willing to properly equip themselves for the great duties of life, and hence are handicapped all through life. The foundation of a successful life is vouchsafed in the thorough preparation which a completed school course gives one.

MORGAN COUNTY STUDENT ASKS FOR HELP FOR GREATER AUBURN

By E. LUNDY MORROW

For the past few weeks the trustees, alumni, students and friends of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute have been conducting an educational campaign, trying to acquaint the people of the state of Alabama with the financial condition of the institution. At a later date each man, woman and child will have an opportunity to make an investment in one of the greatest institutions of the southland. This investment will not be subjected to the hands of dishonest clerks, or to the hands of political grafters, who are so prevalent in most business enterprises, and I am afraid to a great extent in our public offices.

Space will not permit me to elaborate on the institutions glorious past. Each and every person of not only our state but many of the adjoining states have been influenced to do more and better work by having come in contact with alumni of this institution. But it will be of interest to most readers to give a short sketch of the institution's history. It was established as the Alabama Agricultural and Mechanical college in 1872. Some years later the name was changed to Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

This year, 1922, being the semi-centenary of the institution, it is fitting the people of the state to recognize the efficient work done by those who have been connected with the institution, many of whom are still laboring for small salaries and practically no equipment, in developing the natural resources of the state. By example, Auburn graduates are taught to work, after leaving the institution they have established an enviable reputation for themselves as well as for the institution. This good work can not continue unless the people of the state come to the aid of the suffering institution as a parent comes to the aid of a distressed child. Look at the following figures and you will see what the institution needs.

In the past 10 years Auburn has received for equipment and supplies

$220,000; Mississippi, $1,200,000; Texas, $1,300,000. Auburn has $5,000 invested in barns built more than 40 years ago; Mississippi, $52,000; North Carolina, $68,000; Cornell, $142,000, and Tuskegee, $75,000. For maintenance of the experiment station, Auburn receives $65,000; Mississippi, $199,000; North Carolina, $180,000; Florida, $125,000; and Missouri $187,000. For teachers, Auburn receives $69,000; Mississippi, $200,000; North Carolina, $120,000, and Cornell $1,150,000.

Do you believe the thinking people of the state of Alabama will allow one of the greatest assets of not only our state but an asset to the nation to cease to function for the want of financial aid? The plan, as outlined, is to raise $1,000,000 by public subscription. The legislature will be asked to match this money with a similar amount when it convenes the next time.

The money is to be used as follows: $350,000 for chemistry and science building; $300,000 for an auditorium; $300,000 for boys' dormitory; $300,000 for engineering building and equipment; $150,000 for land and walks; $300,000 for agricultural department; $50,000 for gas plant; $50,000 for hospital; $100,000 for library and books; $50,000 for water supply, and $50,000 for an athletic field. This program will use the money that Auburn must have in the next two years if she is to continue her good work and hold her position among the institutions that are getting financial support from their states and citizens.

Stop, think, and make a safe investment.

ABERCROMBIE WILL HEAD CAMPAIGN FOR MEMORIAL SCHOOL

The acceptance of Dr. John W. Abercrombie, state superintendent of education and former president of the University of Alabama, as chairman of the educational committee of the Gorgas Memorial campaign to raise a minimum quota of $750,000 in the state was announced today. The fund will be a part of the $6,000,000 endowment fund with which to carry on the work of the late Surgeon General William Crawford Gorgas in eradicating preventable diseases from the world.

The announcement was made this morning by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, director general of the Southern Commercial Congress and chairman of the Southern states in the Gorgas Memorial movement. A program which will be carried out in all the schools of the state during the week of February 20th, which will be known as "Gorgas Week" was made public this morning by Dr. Abercrombie.

A letter will be sent to the 20,000 teachers in the state this week by Dr. Abercrombie requesting that papers be prepared by the scholars on health and sanitation, and also the great humanitarian work accomplished by Dr. Gorgas throughout the tropical countries of the world. These papers will be read by the scholar chosen by a committee in each locality.

The public exercises to be held in each school throughout the state during Gorgas Week will be addressed by local speakers on the subject of health and sanitation and what benefits will be derived from the institution to be located at Tuscaloosa and known as the Gorgas School of Sanitation, where public health nurses, sanitary engineers and health workers will receive the proper training to fit them for work in the Southern states.

Ironized Yeast Brings Amazing Improvement in Movie Beauty

ANOTHER startling evidence of Ironized Yeast's value as a weight-builder! Iron test conducted under the supervision of a physician, Miss Dorothy Byrne, pretty artist's model and movie beauty, gains 10½ pounds—in only 22 days! Miss Byrne's measurements, taken before and after the test, are given at the left.

A striking example—yet by no means an exceptional one. For it is not at all unusual for thin, nervous, overworked or run-down folks to gain five pounds and more on the very first package of Ironized Yeast!

Results in Half the Usual Time!
The person Ironized Yeast brings such amazing results is because it not only contains just the right amount of all three essential vitamins, but in addition contains a type of yeast which has positively no equal as a reconstructive agent—a yeast which is cultured expressly for medicinal purposes, and which is entirely different from the yeast found in ordinary "yeast tablets."
But even more important than this is the fact that this yeast has been ironized—or treated through a scientific process with a special form of easily assimilated organic iron, similar to the iron found in spinach. When yeast is ironized in this manner it is found that results are not only more permanent, but are secured just twice as quickly!

Make This Amazing Test
Mail coupon for the amazing Three Day Free Trial Treatment of Ironized Yeast. Then watch the results! Note how it immediately increases your appetite and how quickly you begin putting on good firm flesh. See how quickly pimples, blackheads, etc., disappear and how your newly acquired "pep" makes hard work or play a breeze instead of a task. Try IRONIZED YEAST today! GOOD SOAP FOR LESS THAN TWO CENTS A POUND

Make It At Home By This Easy Process—Takes Less Than 30 Minutes

Nowadays, more and more women are doing as their mothers did and are making their own soap. If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to see how easy it is to make good soap, soft soap, hard soap or floating soap, just by using kitchen scraps and waste grease together with a can of Merry War Lye. The safe and sure soap-making process in the old days when soap was made by the boiling process it took nearly all day to make a kettle of soap. Now it is hardly any work at all—requires no boiling—takes less than 30 minutes. —be sure you get "Merry War" lye that has made good for 33 years.

BREAN CLUB

A large attendance was present at the meeting of the Brean club held at the home of Mrs. J. N. Gibson Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. John W. Jones was the leader for the lesson study, taken from the 15th and 16th chapters of Acts, and gave an introductory talk leading up to the papers which followed. Mrs. F. F. Tidwell had a paper, "Mosaic Law as a Preparation for Christianity." Mrs. D. D. McGehee read a paper on "Who Were the Gentiles?" Mrs. A. L. Blackwell gave interesting facts concerning the "Life of James, the Just." A round-table discussion, in which all took part, followed the lesson. Miss Elizabeth Wallace rendered several beautiful selections on the piano, which were very much enjoyed by everyone.

COTAC LITERARY CLUB

Mrs. G. T. Crane was hostess Wednesday to the Cotaco Literary club. The subject for the afternoon was "Local Government" and was ably discussed by the leader, Mrs. Ike Scheer, Mrs. G. T. Crane and Mrs. Carl Patterson.

The house was beautifully decorated in blooming potted plants. Mrs. Crane served delightful refreshments to the members of the club and the visitor, Mrs. Matthews, of Huntsville.

Mrs. Matthews, of Huntsville, is the guest this week of Mrs. Taylor.

W. M. U.

Circle No. 1 of W. M. U. of the Southside Baptist church met with Mrs. L. T. Tomlinson on 6th avenue on Monday, with good attendance. This circle is growing rapidly. Devotional service was led by Mrs. Tom Glascock, using the 2nd chapter of Mark. Mrs. W. Motie led in prayer. Opening song was "Showers of Blessings." Next meeting will be at the usual hour at the church, meeting with Circle No. 2. Let every member be present.

Today's Fashion

Black Velvet Fashions This Stunning Afternoon Blouse.

At first glance, one would think this lady might have accidentally torn her sleeve at the shoulder, but when another look shows that both sleeves are alike, one knows it is on purpose.
This blouse, noted recently at a very smart and pretty in its black velvet and was worn to top a black broadcloth skirt. One of the shops is showing a similar smart effect of rust-colored broadcloth velvet worn with a matching skirt or suit.
Blouse inspirations show divers across this season and one may expect anything from the most conservative to the boldest. The most brilliantly blue are peasant effect.

RUMMAGE SALE

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Christian Church will have a Rummage Sale Saturday, February 11th, in the old Harrison store, Bank Street, Decatur. All proceeds go to needy.

AUBURN NEWS

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 9.—(Special.)

For the purpose of determining the extent to which different varieties of cotton and corn are raised in Alabama, and as far as possible the most popular varieties, a cotton and corn variety survey covering all of the state is now being conducted by H. B. Tisdale, of the agronomy department of the Experiment Station.

Since it is impossible and impractical to make this survey by personal visits it is being conducted by mail by sending a questionnaire to a list of 600 selected farmers in every section of every county of the state and securing from them information not only as to the varieties raised, on their farms but in their locality or community.

Mr. Tisdale states that in every community of the state there are numerous varieties of both cotton and corn; that experiments have shown many commonly raised varieties to be inferior to others; and that it is one of the most productive varieties were planted on every farm each year the total income of the farmers of the state would be increased by millions of dollars.

In answering the questionnaire the different farmers tell of varieties they are raising and express their opinions as to the leading variety of varieties for their community. When the questionnaires are all in and a summary made it is thought that some very important conclusions can be drawn.

Will You Help? Yes You Will!

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Christian Church will hold a rummage sale for the needy on next Saturday and request those who have articles of clothing who desire to donate them, call Mrs. S. M. Thompson, 54 Albany, or Mrs. H. H. Pulliam, 319 Decatur and they will see that they are called for. This is a meritorious effort on the part of members of the society and there is much need in our cities.

Death List Grows In Hotel Blaze

(International News Service)

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 9.—With four bodies in morgues, three other persons known to have perished and 10 others unaccounted for, the death list in the fire which destroyed the Lexington hotel and four other buildings early Tuesday morning was expected to grow today when firemen, police and a force of men resumed digging in the ruins.
The force has been doubled and the ruins are expected to give up at least ten additional dead before the end of the day.

DOCTOR ORDERED WOMAN OBEYED

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and is Now Well

Chicago, Illinois.—"You surely gave women one good medicine when you put Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on the market. After I had my baby I was all run down and so nervous it kept me from gaining. My doctor did everything he could to build me up, then he ordered me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with his medicine and I am now a new woman. I have had three children and they are all Lydia E. Pinkham babies. I have recommended your medicine to several friends and they speak highly of it. You are certainly doing good work in this world."—Mrs. Anna Tomasek, 10567 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

There is nothing very strange about the doctor directing Mrs. Tomasek to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There are many physicians who do recommend it and highly appreciate its value.

Women who are nervous, run down, and suffering from women's ailments should give this well-known root and herb medicine a trial. Mrs. Tomasek's experience should guide you towards health.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife
Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way Lillian and Madge Kept Katie "Out of It."

Our course, it was Lillian who got her wits together first after the shock of seeing the cyclist who had threatened Katie hurried by the speeding automobile within a few feet of her. Katie had only given one terrified scream before Lillian had reached her side, clasped her hand over her mouth, and was giving out whispered commands. I had followed closely, and was ready to help Lillian in whatever plan she had formed.

"Take her other arm," she whispered. "Drag her back into the thick of it. Quick, they've stopped their car! They'll be here in a minute. Shut up, you little fool!" to Katie. "If you scream again, I'll shoot you!"

I saw her plan, of course. Under no circumstances must any one of us be connected with this accident, whether the man were dead or alive. Obviously, Lillian, the most humane of women, would have been first at the man's side to render every possible aid. But that this affair meant something of moment to the mysterious investigation for the government in which she was engaged, I more than suspected, and knew that she placed no consideration above that task of high rank.

Katie went limp in our hands as we reached the shelter of the thickets, and we laid her flat on the ground. I thought she had swooned, but she pressed my hand feebly when I lifted her head. Her pulse, I knew, that she was simply so terror-stricken as the unexpected turn of affairs that she could not stand erect. And then we tried to stifle our very breathing as three men came running down the road, one of them babbling incoherently.

That he was the driver of the machine, overcome by the thought that he had killed a man, I guessed, and my suspicion was confirmed at the first words he articulated, namely, "enough for us to distinguish."

"Imagination!"

"Oh, Ed! Do you suppose I killed him?" he groaned. "Did I kill him? I didn't see him coming till he was right on me."

"Of course you didn't, Tom," another voice, almost as agitated, replied. "You couldn't be blamed. He didn't have any light."

"But I was going too fast over this curved road. I know it. O-oh, that's it! I can't look back, I'm sick. Tell me, is he dead?"

The other two men bent over the sprawled, inert body in the road. I fancied I could hear Lillian's heart beat, and while one of my hands held Katie's the other one found itself clutching Lillian's in frenzied suspense.

"He's breathing, but I'm afraid he's all broken to pieces," one of them said after a little. "One awful thing, he's unconscious. He isn't even groaning."

"I thought I heard a woman scream as we hit him," the third man said, standing up and suddenly flashing a light around. Its beams struck on our thickets, and I never had so strong an impulse to scream as I had at that instant. As he spoke I had felt Lillian's hand withdraw itself from mine, and I realized that she had again briefly closed Katie's lips, preventing her betrayal of us.

"Imagination," the man addressed as "Ed" pronounced. "You heard this poor devil shriek. But now, what's to be done? We must get him to the hospital at once."

The driver of the car gave a hoarse exclamation.

"Steady just a minute."

"One of you fellows will have to drive," he said, his voice quavering like that of an old man. "I'll land us all in the ditch before we'd gone twenty feet. I'll do anything else but drive. Don't ask me that."

"I'll drive," promised Ed, who seemed to have the strongest nerves of the three. "I'll go and get the car now. I'll be back in five minutes. I'll be back here, so we won't have to carry him any farther than is necessary. You fellows take off your coats. Here's mine, and see if you can't get a stretcher with some branches from those trees. Here's my knife."

I do not believe I ever have known so brave an experience as that which we three women went through in the next five minutes. From him to buy near the two men went, hunting branches for their improvised stretcher. Once they were so near us that I could have touched the man named Ed, had I chosen, and I saw that he had a very pale face, and that his hands were shaking.

We expected disaster at any moment, and poor Katie must have been nearly smothered, for Lillian did not take her hand from the girl's mouth until the stretcher was ready to be raised, and was once more a safe distance from us.

The noise of the approaching motor car gave us an instant's respite, and Lillian took advantage of it to whisper reassuringly:

"Steady just a minute or two longer."

But when at last the task of transferring the motionless figure from the ground to the stretcher had been completed, and the car, with Ed at the wheel, had disappeared in the direction of the hospital, Lillian was as glad as I to slump down quivering upon the soft moss, and to gather nervous strength for the journey back to the farmhouse.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

The Way Madge, Lillian and Katie Got Home.

I DO not know how long Lillian, Katie and I lay exhausted, quivering and silent upon the mossy carpet of the thicket from which, unseen ourselves, we had witnessed the terrible accident to the man whom Katie had come to meet. But it must have been fully ten minutes before any of us gained sense enough to speak.

As for myself, I felt only the natural shock of seeing a man so nearly killed before my eyes, but I knew that my companions were more strongly interested.

That Katie had some intimate personal knowledge of this man which had terrorized her into creeping from her home so many evenings to meet him, I could not help but believe. And I knew that Lillian had counted upon overhearing Katie's talk with the man in the belief that she would learn something which would aid her in her secret investigation for the government. Lillian was intensely disappointed at this failure of her plan, but I shrewdly suspected that Katie's whole soul, upon the first terrible shock had passed, was a panic of joy.

"Forgive me, Katie, for handling you so roughly," Lillian broke the silence at last, with voice as unsteady as if we were rocking on the veranda at the farmhouse. "But I couldn't permit a single sound to betray us. I want to keep track of that fellow in the hospital, and I can't do it if anybody knows I ever heard of him before."

"Oh!" Katie's voice was a frightened wail. "Don't you don't think do you die?"

Lillian Quits Katie.

"Do you want him to die, Katie?" There was no trace in Lillian's quiet voice of the curious interest which I knew was hers at the girl's betraying outbreak.

"Do I want him to die?" Katie repeated, then her voice rose in hysterical repetition. "Do I want him to die? Yes, Miss Underwood, I want him to die so dead one million angels can't bring him back to life."

There was something almost ghastly in the girl's intensity, but if what I began to suspect were true, I could not find it in my heart to censure her very strongly. Lillian, however, was prompt in retaliation.

"You must know, Madge, I like to go by my own room."

"Of course, Katie," I hesitated for a minute, then added, lamely enough, "Would you like me to come with you?"

"She said me a wan little smile, far sadder than tears."

"Thank you, Madge, I am so glad to see you, but you please excuse me, I must go now. Goodnight, maybe, but you be busy, I come ask you something."

NEWS OF HARTSELLE

Mrs. J. L. Grover and son, Roy, left Wednesday night for Carrollton, Ga., being called there by the serious illness of Mrs. Grover's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Grover came here about two years ago since which time Mr. Grover has been engaged in the grocery business.

A large crowd was present to see the game of basketball played between Bryson college, of Fayetteville, Tenn., and the armory team of Hartselle. The Bryson team have a long list of victories to their credit and a hard-fought game was played. The score follows: Bryson college, 26; Cavalry team, 17.

Foxes are being reported so numerous that they are seen in daylight in the fields close to town. The fox hunters that live here are having fine sport with them as they have a chase nearly every night.

John Pope and family, of Hackelburg, Ala., have moved to town and Mr. Pope has a position with the Doss Hardware and Furniture company. They are occupying the Dr. McKee residence in the eastern part of town.

After three years of building and patient labor the congregation of the First Christian church are rejoicing that their handsome stone church is at last complete. This church was completed amid great hardships. It was begun when conditions were flourishing, later conditions rendered the work slow and tedious.

Several have begun the spring garden already and lettuce, onions, mustard, English peas and other hardy vegetables have been planted. There has been several thousand cabbage plants sold here to date. There is annually sold of this vegetable at this place great quantities and the present year will not be any exception.

There is a plan among home owners to have a city beautiful, expressed in beautiful flowers and pretty yards and lawns. The matter is taking shape and when the warm weather of spring arrives there will be a movement entered into on a large plane that will accomplish.

The dedicatory service, dedicating the memorial arch to the soldiers who fell in the world war from this country, will be held at an early date, it is understood, and arrangements are now being made to have them commensurate with the end sought to be made.

The money for the arch was contributed by members of the Delta Zeta club of Hartselle, and consists of two large stone piers across which is to be extended a memorial arch with suitable inscription. There will also be the word Welcome, in letters 16 inches in diameter and this will be lighted up at night.

Rev. R. M. Howell is to deliver an address at the dedication, as is Capt. R. A. Burleson, also. It is understood that the services will be held Sunday afternoon.

Worthiness.

A man can bear a world's contempt when he has that within him which says he's worthy.—Alexander Smith.
